To whom it may concern,

To date, Southside Contractors under the supervision of Eric Koulpasis and his team have done an outstanding job maintaining the quality of our construction project while staying congruent with our very tight schedule. Southside has faced many adversities through this process thus far which include rain delays, architectural drawings that were in need of further information and inconsistent communication from a few of our companies vendors. The biggest hurdle that Southside has had to overcome lay the site development as major sewer lines did not meet properly and had to be re-excavated. Southside maintained the construction schedule and are on track to deliver the premises according to the original schedule. We are now dry (under roof) and look forward to the completion of the project in the same professional high quality manner.

If there is a need to obtain further information from our standpoint, feel free to contact me at any time.

Sincerely,

Staffan High
